Will Overhaul Organization of the Department and Do Away With Aid for Personnel and Aid for Inspections

The organization of the navy department is to be overhauled by Mr. Daniels before the beginning of the next fiscal year. His first step will be to abolish two of the most important offices.

The present organization was worked out by Mr. Daniels' predecessor, George von L. Meyer, after two years of contest between himself and the House naval committee when that body was under Republican control. Mr. Meyer abolished one bureau and thought of abolishing others, but the committee went on making appropriations for the same bureaus that had been in existence for many years. Thus the bureau of equipment which had not been in existence for three years, is still alive in appropriation bills.

The secretary of the navy, however, by an executive order, can designate who shall spend money. Mr. Meyer formed the little cabinet known as "Aids to the Secretary," four in number. They were the aid for operation, the aid for personnel, the aid for material and the aid for inspection.

The offices of aid for personnel and aid for inspection are to be abolished. There is a vacancy in the first named place and Mr. Daniels has decided not to fill it. He regards the position of aids for inspections as superfluous in a large measure, and believes it might well be assumed by the officer who is aid for material, and it is likely that he will combine the two places. The positions of aid for operations and aid for material are the only ones which Mr. Daniels regards as necessary. He prefers a smaller departmental cabinet, and have two more officers of rank and ability for sea duty or for responsible board and institutional service.

Secretary Daniels is quite outspoken in his conviction that the prime object of the navy department is to have a strong navy on the sea, not at desks in Washington and elsewhere. The committee of "congress" have shown a disposition to support him.

NOT MISSING ARNOLD GIRL

Husband of Los Angeles Woman Says Story Is Result of Hallucination.

New York, March 15.—The claim of Emily O'Neil of Los Angeles, California, that she is Dorothy Arnold who disappeared from her home in this city in 1910 was described today as "pure nonsense" by the father of the missing girl, Francis R. Arnold.

John S. Keith, the attorney for Mr. Arnold who has been taking an active part in the world wide search for the girl expressed himself similarly. Some time ago said Mr. Keith a letter in which knowledge of Miss Arnold's whereabouts was asserted, was received from an attorney in Los Angeles, but no attention was paid to it because it appeared to offer no better hopes of a solution of the mystery than hundreds of other communications which the family received in the last three years.

A general police alarm for the missing girl was still out, he said, and both he and Mr. Arnold were confident that they would have heard from the Los Angeles police had Miss Arnold been found. Mr. Keith denied that Mr. Arnold sent money to the woman claiming to be his daughter.

That he had received a letter from a Los Angeles attorney was the only information Mr. Arnold had to give, he placed no credence in the story that his daughter was found.

"It is pure nonsense," he said, "I have received 50 letters within the past month from all parts of the country, the writers claiming to have found my daughter and seeking reward. I pay no attention to them."

MEXICAN AND REBEL ARMIES NEAR BATTLE

BUILDING STARTS AT YORK BEACH

New Postoffice and Bungalows—State Road Opens to Biddeford.

Portsmouth people who visit York Beach each season will be interested to learn of the changes which are going on at the present time, and some that are to take place during the spring.

One of the most important is the removal of the postoffice from its former stand opposite the Kearsarge hotel to the Taylor building in the square.

There will be no new phases of amusement this season. The contractors stated several days ago that the building this spring would be light, and would be confined mostly to cottage houses. Bungalows will be erected in Concordville and along Long Beach. J. J. Holland, the well known Manchester druggist, is planning to build an addition to his present pharmacy. The building formerly occupied by the postoffice will be remodeled by the proprietor and a new establishment started. Other minor changes will be in order.

Automobiles who have had occasion to visit the beach and who intend to four Maine next season will be pleased to learn that the state road will probably be completed by the summer. With the exception of a narrow strip from York Harbor to the beach the road is opened from Portsmouth to Biddeford. The contractor has promised to open the long beach boulevard in time for the annual rush of motorists to the beach in July. The scraper has already removed the surplus and everything is in readiness for the steam roller which will be put in action as soon as the snow has left the ground.

The Haydon Yacht Club is planning on a big year. The annual carnival will be bigger and better than ever before and the events which will be held in the course of the summer will attract hundreds of people. If the hotel people are willing to lend concerts will be held twice each week in the square as an added amusement. The base ball team will return stronger than ever with a team which will battle for the championship of the state. The dance hall and three moving picture houses will be opened and going in full swing by the last of June.

At present the beach is covered with ice and snow, and is far from the bustling summer appearance.

Villa Intercepts Wireless Message Which Hastens Long Deferred Conflict for Possession of Torreon

Houston, Texas, March 15.—A general forward march of both the Mexican Federal and rebel armies at Torreon was begun early today, preliminary to the opening of the long battle for possession of that city according to a dispatch from Chihuahua, Mexico tonight to the Houston Post.

In the first skirmish the Constitutionalists it is said were put to flight, but in later minor engagements the rebel troops were reported victorious.

Orders were given by General Villa for the advance of his troops late last night. The action was caused by the interception of a wireless message from President Huerta at Mexico City to General Huerta at Torreon, commanding the Federal garrison at Torreon. As caught by Villa's wireless station the message directed Huerta to make the offensive against the constitutionalists immediately.

A special train has been started for Juarez to bring General Felipe Angeles, secretary of war in the cabinet of General Carranza to Chihuahua to command the artillery.

Within a few hours after orders were given for the rebel advance, dispatches from the extreme front indicated a Federal movement west from Meximal through Canyon la Cadena, which owing to its proximity to the Federal outposts had not been strongly garrisoned by the Constitutionalists. (The small rebel force retreated. General Huerta with 2000 men at Delago, nine Spanish leagues to the north immediately was ordered to advance and General Villa issued orders for the advance of all the cavalry at Escalon, Conchos, Pecos and other points along his battle front to the immediate northwest of Torreon.

A later report from the front said General Angeles had proceeded southward from Conchos in response to General Villa's orders to advance and was encountering a large body of Federal troops south of Pecos and given the name of the battle. The battle was said to be impatient for the arrival of General Angeles in order that he may reach the scene of the battle. He has suspended regular train service as all rolling stock will be used for troop movement.

WENEHASA BASKETBALL TEAM TAKE ANOTHER TITLE

Defeat the Maine Champions and Will Now Go After the New England Title.

The Wenehasa basketball team composed of high school scholars, practically won the title of champions of Maine and New Hampshire on Saturday evening, when in the fastest game of the season they defeated the Peering high school team, who held the undisputed title of school teams in Maine, and the locals had previously disposed of the various aspirants in this state.

The game on Saturday evening, which was played at the Y. M. C. A., was the fastest the local boys have had, and the closeness of the score 14 to 7 indicates somewhat how hard the scoring was. The visiting team were a stocky bunch of players, who knew the game and gave an exhibition of fast floor work and while they were unable to score themselves they kept the locals well blocked. Sanderson the local center, who is always credited with many goals, failed to secure a single basket, but Badger who played a fast game secured three.

There was a good crowd present and the fast plays quickly noticed by the spectators.

A return game will be played in Portland.

Now that the locals have a good claim to the state titles they are to seek games with the Fall River Technical high and the Newport, N. H. high, for the New England championship. Coach Cragen, who is responsible for the splendid work of the team, is confident that he has a five that can defeat anything of its size in New England. Next Saturday the team will play Laconia high at Laconia and the Salem Normal high game scheduled for Wednesday will be cancelled. The summary:

Wenehasa Club Deering High
Butler of D. Spier
Badger of R. Stockman
Sanderson of C. Barry
Brackett of St. John
Hassett of Adams

Mugridge of St. Adams
Score, Wenehasa Club 14, Deering High 7. Goals from Badger 3, Mugridge, Barry, Adams. Goals from faults, Brackett 5, Stockman 2, Adams 1. Referee, Swan. Umpire Billings, Scott, Gibson and Moulton. Timers, Cold and Murch. Time, 15 and 20 minutes.

1500 PEOPLE ARE REPORTED DEAD IN STORM

Hurricane Sweeps Southern Russia With Terrible Results.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—Details of the hurricane which swept the province of Kuban southern Russia, Saturday were received here tonight from Jbaitnodar.

Northerly gale caused numerous waterpumps off the east coast of Sea of Azov, and the shore from Yelick to the Strait of Kerch, a distance of about 500 miles, was flooded and villages damaged.

One hundred and seventy-six men employed in the construction work of the Kuban railway were sleeping in a shed. They were awakened by the roar of the storm and fled before the rising tide to a train standing on the railway line and endeavored to escape on it. Soon, however, the engine and cars were overturned by the rushing waters and swept away with the men.

The hurricane raged for ten hours. When it ceased the receding floods revealed terrible scenes of destruction. Eight miles of the railway embankment were in ruins.

The wrecked train was covered with the bodies of dead workmen, all of them showing evidences of the terrible struggle which they had gone through in an endeavor to escape death.

Forty-eight of the 176 men finally got to shore on floating wreckage, but it is feared that all the other members of the construction crew were drowned.

Many courageous rescues of persons floating on wreckage in the sea have been reported. A large number of bodies have been washed ashore at various points.

The meagre dispatches received here today reported that 1500 lives had been lost as a result of the storm but no reliable details given what may be termed an accurate estimate have yet come to hand.

SENDS BULLET THROUGH HEART

Ezra T. Corson of Rochester Commits Rash Deed in His Stable.

Ezra T. Corson of Rochester shot himself through the heart Sunday morning in his stable on Academy street. He made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide a number of years ago at his home by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. This time he used a .32 caliber rifle.

He had been dependent of late and his wife had watched him closely. He arose this morning and appeared in good spirits and attended to chores about the house. He told his wife he was going to the stable. Soon after he left the house Mrs. Corson heard a noise in the stable. When she arrived there she heard the report of the rifle up stairs followed by her husband's fall. She went to the top of the stairs and found him dead on the floor.

Dr. Guy Abbott, a roomer was called, who notified Medical Referee Walter J. Roberts. He pronounced death due to suicide.

Mr. Corson was born in East Rochester to son of Benjamin and Mary (Coyes) Corson and had lived in Rochester 15 years. He was a shoe-maker by trade. He belonged to Bridge Lodge Knights of Pythias, and the Rochester Congregational church.

He is survived by a wife; a mother; three brothers, Eldredge H., Seth and Elihu Corson; and four sisters, Mrs. Sarah McGill, Mrs. Irving Corson and the Misses Mary and Alice Corson, all of East Rochester. His age was 37 years.

THE PRICE OF COAL.—IT IS CONDEMNED EVEN BY A PHILADELPHIA PAPER

If the public service commission can take cognizance of the price of coal it will enter upon a fruitful field of investigation. Mining coal may not come within the purview of the commission but its transportation certainly does, and the costs of transportation are the most important factor in determining the price which consumers must pay.

It has been one of the redressed grievances of consumers that they were helpless under the exactions of the coal barons—whether they may be, and another has been the inextricable law which has operated to double or triple to the consumer, and increase in the cost of mining. One of the most conspicuous instances of the latter have been in connection with the several increases in the wages of miners. An addition of ten cents a ton for the miner has been invariably followed by an addition of 25 cents a ton or more to the bill of the householder.

Now a new complication is introduced by the state tax of two and one-half per cent per ton on the coal marketed. This means a revenue of perhaps 5 cents a ton to the state; but the coal trade recoups itself for this extra cost by adding another 25 cents to the retail price.

No wonder the stocks of the coal-carrying roads are growing daily more valuable. The public is long-suffering, but it will not long stand this sort of exploitation, and if the public service commission cannot af-

IF CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Look Mother! If Tongue Is Coated Cleanse Little Bowels With California Syrup of Figs

Children love this fruit laxative and nothing else cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half sick, feverish, can't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach ache or diarrhoea. Listen Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of California Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give California Syrup of Figs because it is perfectly harmless; children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of California Syrup of Figs, which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine made by the California Fig Syrup Company. Refuse any other kind with contempt.

FURBELOWS AND FLOUNCES

Fashion decrees the returning to favor of the separate skirt and the making of the skirt a thing of furbebows, frills, and flounces.

The stores—those "fashion-indicators"—are already showing the new style notes and telling about them in their advertisements.

It used to be that the new colors of the newspapers made the fashion announcements first; but nowadays the stores are so alert and so anxious to be first in these announcements that much of the latest fashion news is in the advertising columns.

Any person who wishes to keep up-to-the-minute on the new fashions must be a reader of the advertising in live newspapers like The Herald.

The advertising columns are the mirrors that reflect the attractions of the merchants and manufacturers. These men live by service.

They must make their advertisements timely and interesting just as they make their merchandise desirable and fair in price.

The news of the frills and furbebows is only one kind of advertisement.

Read the advertising and keep informed.

PARCEL POST HAS PROVED ITS WORTH BY DISSOLUTION OF EXPRESS COMPANY

Washington, March 15.—The voluntary dissolution of the United States Express Company proves beyond a doubt that the parcel post has come to stay and that the big express men of the country realize that a profit is being made by the government on this business," declared Senator Kenyon of Iowa Saturday.

"If the parcel post business was really being carried at a loss, or if there is no way of making the business profitable with a few simple changes, no one would know it better than the express officials, and they would continue in business, confident that after a few lean years, while the parcel post would be continued, the public would demand that this big loss by the national government would be stopped. Then, they would be reasoning, the express companies would come into their own again."

"I think this news, at this particular time, is very appropriate, showing that the claims made just a few weeks ago on the floor of the Senate that the parcel post is being run at a tremendous loss are absolutely unfounded."

Throws Out 15,000.

The passing of the express company will throw 15,000 persons out of employment, about 2000 of whom work in the New York and Jersey City offices. These employees received in salary and wages approximately $6,000,000 a year of which $765,000 was paid to employees at Jersey City alone.

Many of these employees, especially in the larger offices, have grown old in the service of the company, and it was said today that few of them were financially able to retire from active employment of some sort.

Blames New Rates

The dissolution will affect express service covering 82,038 miles of railroad, with between 5000 and 6000 stations, according to a statement made public today by Duncan I. Roberts, president of the company since January 1913. Mr. Roberts said the new rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission was the chief factor in influencing the directors. Mr. Roberts also blamed state rate commissions, which he declared ordered rates in some instances lower than those fixed by the interstate commerce commission. Continuing Mr. Roberts said:

"There is no quarrel over the parcel post; it fills a want the express companies never could, with the utter impracticability of rural deliveries by them. The fault lies with the change in rates."

Stockholders' Share

The stockholders will probably get more than the present market value of their stock, as the company's liquid assets are valued in excess of

COMMISSIONERS ORDER RADICAL CHANGES

Washington, March 15.—The Interstate Commerce Commission Saturday handed down three supplemental orders in rate cases growing out of controversies between the state of Iowa and shippers' organizations there and the railroads, which are of no slight importance as bearing on the general question of railroad revenues and freight rates. The orders which were made by Commissioner Harlan, who is in charge of the general advanced rate case, make sweeping reductions in rates between the East and West and all interior Iowa points and points along the Mississippi on the eastern Iowa border.

The reductions ordered amount almost to a revolution in Iowa traffic conditions and will unquestionably tend to diminish revenue of such roads as the Northwestern, the Burlington, the Rock Island and the Illinois Central. Freight rates are cut on over 8000 articles between over 1000 towns in Iowa and several towns and towns in New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, and some other states. Chairman McCall of the trunk line association representing all the great Eastern roads, pronounces some of the modifications the most radical modification of the percentage system of rates existing between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic coast, that has ever been made by the interstate commerce commission.

LAUNCHING IN MAY

Vanderbilt Syndicate Cup Boat Further Advanced Than the Two Others.

Bristol, March 15.—Although the sloop building by Herreshoff for the Vanderbilt syndicate is farther advanced than either the Defiance at Bath or the Cochran sloop, building at Lawley's, she will not be put overboard much before the date set for the launching of the Fynelson-Clark syndicate boat, May 11.

The Herreshoff boat, which is being constructed for a syndicate made up of former flag officers of the New York Yacht Club, is almost two-thirds completed and is to remain in the boatshop until the first part of May.

P. A. C. MINSTREL SHOW THIS EVENING

The Portsmouth Athletic Club will this evening at the Portsmouth Theatre again present to the public a minstrel show, and judging from the dress rehearsal on Sunday afternoon at the theatre, it will be the best ever, and this is going some for this club have for years been the most successful producers of black face minstrel.

The members of the club have been working hard for some weeks in preparation for the show, and they have left nothing undone to make the show go.

Special attention has been paid to the music and it has been arranged by the best men in New England and in addition to a lot of new and popular songs, an original song by F. E. Hasty, with music by Alex. Wilburick entitled "When the Stars Kiss the Day Good Night." This song is now in the publishers' hands, and will soon be on the market.

Sunday a dress rehearsal was held at the theatre, and previous to this the stage carpenters had been busy and had the fine setting already. The rehearsal went with a dash that delighted everybody, and there is nothing left now but to await the ringing up of the curtain on the overture.

The advance sale for both performances has been large, but there are still some seats to be obtained for both performances.

KING SENDS OUT SLIT SKIRT

Belgian Monarch Tactfully Bars Woman in Extreme Dress.

Brussels, March 15.—At the court ball last night the observant eye of King Albert espied a woman entering the ballroom with an extreme slit skirt. The king whispered something to the court marshal, who immediately offered the woman his arm and led her out of the room. At the door of the ballroom, the marshal, bowing to the woman, said: "Ifs majesty noticed that you had torn your dress up one side and requested me to escort you to your carriage so that you may return home and have the damage repaired."

WALKED OVER TREE TOPS

Warren, N. H., March 15.—A snow-shoelag party returned from a trip over Mt. Moosilauke reports snow as being anywhere from four to five feet deep in many places. Half-way up the mountain, in the region of the growth of scrub spruce trees, it is the deepest. In many places the party found themselves tramping over the tree tops, the green tips just appearing above the snow in the footprints of the party.

The telephone line over the mountain is set up on poles from six to eight feet in height, and for a considerable distance only the tops of these were visible.

GOVERNMENT WILL INSIST THAT NEW HAVEN DISPOSE OF THEIR HOLDINGS

Washington, March 15.—New Haven railroad trustees Saturday at the department of justice covered nearly the entire field of the proposed agreement. Names of trustees for the railway lines, which the New Haven has agreed to give up, and steamship lines were discussed, without definite action being taken.

T. W. Gregori, special assistant attorney, issued a statement this evening denying that the government had gone outside the proposed terms of Jan. 10 in considering at yesterday's conference the wharves and docks owned by the New Haven. He showed emphatically that the department was keeping within the terms agreed on.

Adjournment Saturday was till Friday but Chairman Elliott of the New Haven may remain in Washington over today. New Haven directors will meet Thursday, when questions considered at the department today and yesterday will be estimated. Notwithstanding outside statements about difficulties in reaching a full agreement, officials at the department of justice declared tonight they believed the matter would be settled "pretty soon."

Seeking Best Possible Terms

One of those participating in the negotiations Saturday said: "As lawyers will generally do, we are wasting much time in talk at these conferences. The New Haven officials are trying to get the very best terms they can. The attorneys for the department seem to expect that."

"But the negotiations are going forward in good temper. There are no terrible quarrels. It seems to me that no one is assuming an impossible attitude or endangering a settlement."

Before the next conference, New Haven officials will attempt to find five trustees who are acceptable to the department of justice to take over the Connecticut railroads and five to take over the Rhode Island trolleys. It was the belief here tonight that if the New Haven's choice of trustees for the Connecticut lines is favorably received by Atty. Gen. McReynolds there will be little difficulty in deciding upon the length of their service.

Further details with regard to the trolleys and the problems of the disposition of the New Haven's steamships will be arranged before an attempt is made to get together on the Boston and Maine trusteeship.

Deny Forcing Pier Sales

The department issued last night this statement:

"Within the last 24 hours several newspapers have published statements to the effect that the government is making new demands upon the New Haven company not covered by the general agreement reached on Jan. 10; That it is demanding that the New Haven part with its holdings in dock and wharf properties at New Haven, Providence, Fall River and other sound and river ports in New England and have intimated that the department is attempting in the pending negotiations to recede from the general understanding that the interstate commerce commission shall pass upon the right of the New Haven to retain its sound lines. There is no foundation for these statements and this intimation."

"Under the terms of the agreement of Jan. 10 it is provided that the New Haven shall, within the time and the manner to be agreed upon, dispose of the stocks and obligations held by it in the Sound steamship lines unless the interstate commerce commission permits it to retain these lines."

Wharves Go With Lines

"In case the interstate commerce commission does not permit it to retain the Sound lines, the wharf and dock facilities owned by those lines will, of course, pass with them from the control of the New Haven when it disposes of its stock in those lines. The department has made no demand on the New Haven to part with dock and wharf holdings not covered by the terms of the agreement of Jan. 10."

Attention was called last night to the fact that the New Haven owns in fee the wharves and docks in Sound cities, while the steamship lines are owned through other corporations. It was argued that if the department insisted that the New Haven get rid of the steamships it must necessarily insist that it give up its wharves and docks which they could use.

It was said that discovery of this fact by the department led to the apparent disagreement between the conferences over the wharves and docks.

A REALLY TASTELESS CASTOR OIL AT LAST

Good bye drugs and pills. The perfect laxative has arrived—Kelllogg's Tasteless Castor Oil—made tasteless by a method which chemists have tried to find for 3,000 years.

This is not a flavored or disguised castor oil. It is just pure castor oil without taste or odor.

Kelllogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is a better castor oil than the evil tasting, evil smelling kind. While none of the taste remains none of the good has been taken out. Kelllogg's tasteless operates quickly and freely, without griping, causes no gas and does not turn the stomach. Children take it easily and relish it.

The drug stores have all been supplied. You have only to ask for Kelllogg's Tasteless Castor Oil, 25c or 50c size. It is not sold in bulk. The trade mark is a green castor leaf on the label, bearing the Kelllogg signature.

Made only by Spencer Kelllogg and Sons, Inc., of Buffalo, N. Y.; dealers in vegetable oils for four generations. For sale by C. W. Bass, Boardman & Norlon B. B. Coleman, Wm. D. Grace, Don J. Green, C. E. Philbrick, C. E. Tilton & Company. R. B. Clark, Kittery.

TREASURER OF UNION BANK DEAD

Exeter, N. H., March 15.—Miss Sarah C. Clark, aged 70, died at her home on Lincoln street Saturday afternoon after a gradual decline from paralysis. She was born in Stratham Aug. 10, 1843, the fourth of six children of Benjamin F. and Elizabeth (Wingate) Clark, but had long been an esteemed resident of Exeter.

For more than 27 years she was treasurer of the Union Five Cents Savings Bank, resigning April 9, 1910. She was the first and for a long time the only woman in the state to hold a like post, and she discharged its duties with marked ability. She was a charter member and past regent of Exeter Chapter, D. A. R., a member of the First Church and a former member of the Mechanics and Music Clubs.

FREAKS AT MONTE CARLO

Even Inveterate Gamblers Stop to Look at Some of the Dresses

Describing a visit to the gaming rooms of the Casino, the Monte Carlo correspondent of the Confidential Daily Mail says: "Dress alterations are so numerous and so striking just now that every time a fashionable phenomenon enters and walks up the large room hundreds of heads turn to gaze. Even the inveterate gamblers stop to been seen to glance over his shoulder on hearing the whispered comments which these strange dresses and often stranger wearers invariably draw forth.

One lady's head the other evening was covered with a light netting fringed about with an upstanding comb of black unadorned feathers, which reminded the onlooker of a prize-bred cock. Round the wearer's bare shoulders was a stole of tiger skin edged with ermine.

Then, quite a sensation was caused by the "serpent" lady, thin, tall and sinuous, and clothed in glittering sequins, who glided in and out of the multitude.

On walking near to her it was seen that she had long passed man's or woman's allotted span of years, and with unique discretion had covered her shoulders and neck right up to the chin with fine white, tightly stretched tulle.

The "pouter pigeon" lady is, of course, always visible in the room. She is usually all in white—in soft white satin, and her more than generous curves gradually line down until nothing is seen but two little white feet.

Hunting for More Trade.

American merchants and manufacturers are preparing to strike a blow for the extension of their trade in the West Indies and South America and are going at it in a business-like manner. A large steamer has been chartered and will sail next October, carrying a small army of salesmen and a large assortment of goods of all kinds. The principal ports in South America and the West Indies will be visited, the goods will be displayed; all possible information will be given and orders will be taken where they can be secured. It is expected that from 300 to 400 manufacturing concerns will be represented, and it is believed that the enterprise, though very expensive, will yield large returns to those taking part, in the form of profitable present and future trade.

Another important business enterprise is also on foot. Manufacturers and wholesalers have united and formed the Home Town Association of America, whose purpose is to hold and stimulate business in the towns and smaller cities of the country. While the business to be secured in any one of these towns is small, it is large in the aggregate and the big fellows are after it. Through the Home Town Association they hope to infuse more energy into local merchants and induce them to adopt modern methods, to the end that they may sell more goods and, incidentally, buy more of the wholesalers and manufacturers. It is not a philanthropic movement in any sense, it is business from start to finish.

And the merchants whom this movement is designed to reach will do well to respond. In these days business, like a growing crop, needs cultivation. When the country was new the mere placing of seed in the ground practically insured a crop, but it is not so now. In the early days the man who bought a stock of goods and let the public know where they could be obtained was in business, but those conditions no longer obtain. Today the trade crop, like any other, calls for careful and constant attention. The situation calls constant, liberal and judicious advertising. The manufacturers and wholesalers understand this, as do the great majority of smaller business men. Those who do not must fall or, at the best, linger by the wayside.

It costs to advertise, but there is nothing that pays better if the work is properly done.

The United States Express Company throws up the sponge, feeling unable longer to compete with the parcel post. It is the company of which the late Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York was at the head, for many years, and it had a long and prosperous career. All that is to be said now is that the company's loss is the public's gain.

Prize fighting and baseball playing continue to rank among the best paid callings in the country. William Ritchie received nearly $16,000 for a recent night's work in the ring, while a baseball player has been given a bonus of $20,000 for signing a contract at a salary that makes that of a college professor look lean.

George Westinghouse, the great inventor, is gone, but the large and important industries that grew out of his inventions will go on. His achievements brought him rich rewards—something which cannot be said of all inventors—and are of incalculable benefit to the country and the world.

The importation of potatoes is largely restricted because of plant diseases, and so the market is practically retained for home growers of this important vegetable. In case of a short crop, prices will add materially to the cost of living.

Eastern sportsmen are talking of importing jack rabbits from "Bleeding Kansas" to stock the game preserves. The land of "Ossawatimie" Brown would be glad if they would take the whole of them.

A western university professor says a man with an income of $75 a month can afford to marry, provided the wife does all of the housework. The trouble nowadays is to find that kind of a wife.

A millionaire automobilist in Oregon was recently sentenced to five days of stone breaking for overspeeding. Well, breaking stones is better than breaking bones.

A St. Louis man who has spent 48 years of his life in prison has been returned for seven years more. He must feel very much at home behind the bars.

Can it be that the cold snap of last Thursday morning was caused by the eclipse shutting off the heat of the moon?

It is clear that the late George W. Vanderbilt believed in keeping his money in the family.

The strengthening of the United States troops along the Mexican border was generally taken as an indication that the administration was determined to be fully prepared for intervention if such a course was absolutely necessary. The Ninth and Seventeenth United States Infantry, stationed at Fort Logan H. Hoots, Arkansas, and Fort McPherson, Georgia, were sent to Eagle Pass and Laredo, Tex. They added to the strength of the troops under the command of Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, who is here pictured on the left. Colonel John T. Van Orsdale (right) was in charge of the Seventeenth regiment until the day it was ordered to the border, being then retired on account of age.

CHOSE A LIVE PLACE.

Two Newburyport Young Men Said To Be Making Good in This City.

A writer in The Newburyport Herald has the following to say concerning two local business men: While on a recent visit to Portsmouth, N. H., I learned that Ralph C. Dickey, a former student at the Newburyport high school, and son of the principal of the same high school for several years, George Dickey, was manager of the two largest garages in the town. He is another Newburyport boy "making good" out of town. He was a good football player while at the high school, and played on the team several years. The numerous friends of Mr. Dickey in this city may be interested to know that he was married a short time ago. The largest laundry in the New Hampshire town he also jointly owned and operated with a former Newburyport boy, and another young man who calls Salisbury "home."

SCHOONER SUFFERS IN HEAVY GALE.

New York, March 15.—With her lower sails crippled, her rudder head carried away and her provisions nearly gone as the result of running into a heavy gale, the four-masted schooner Elsie Atkins of Bath, Me., from Tampa, Fla., in Baltimore was spoken late yesterday in latitude 35.52; longitude 74.43 by the steamer Veril, which arrived here from South American ports today.

Captain Pearce, master of the Veril, reported that he had sent a boat with provisions for immediate needs to the Elsie Atkins and had been notified by wireless the U. S. revenue cutter Services and the agent of the schooner at Baltimore. When last

The Changing Age

Girls and boys from 14 to 19 years of age undergo physical changes which tax their strength to the utmost and the strain is always apparent from pale cheeks, colorless lips, and tired bodies—sometimes eruptions of the skin and the utter lack of the ambition and animation with which their younger years were filled.

Budding into womanhood and manhood, with the duties of school or business, demands concentrated nourishment which is readily convertible into red blood corpuscles, energy and strength, and the very best thing for this changing age is the medical nutriment in Scott's Emulsion—it possesses the rare blood-making properties of cod liver oil in a predigested form, hypophosphites for the nervous system, with the healing, soothing qualities of pure glycerine.

Its nourishing force promotes assimilation, yields direct returns in abundant red blood, fills hollow cheeks, tones the nerves, makes all good food do good, and does it in a natural easy manner.

The sustaining nutriment in Scott's Emulsion is so helpful to this changing age that it should never be neglected—every struggle has it.

SPRING WEATHER IS DUE THIS WEEK

Washington, March 16.—Fair early spring weather over nearly all parts of the country during the coming week was predicted tonight by the weather bureau.

"The weather will be unsettled, Monday, however," said the weekly bulletin "along the northern border from the Great Lakes westward and there will be rains the first part of the week in the north Pacific states."

The next disturbance of importance will appear on the North Pacific coast Monday night or Tuesday, cross the great central valleys Wednesday or Thursday and the eastern states about Friday. This disturbance will be attended by local rains and snows, and it will be followed by cold weather over the northern states east of the Rocky mountains.

ONE ON THE JOKER

Congressman Frank Park of Georgia smiled the other night when one of the party remarked that the man who couldn't take a joke should never try to give one. He said he was reminded of the office wit.

One day a new boy came to work in the office, and the wit, whose name was Atkins, immediately got on the job.

"See here Willie," said he addressing the new boy and handing him a quarter, "just run over to Black and White's and tell them to give you 5 cents' worth of pigeon milk. Bring me the change."

With a calm face the boy left the office, and right gleefully the staff chuckled. A half an hour later he returned with a basket in his hand, and approached Atkins who was engaged with the boss.

"Here," said the youngster, handing a live pigeon to the amused Atkins, "milk the bird yourself. There ain't no change."

MEXICANS KILL POSTMASTER

San Diego Official Slain by Bandits—Burn American Flag.

San Diego, Cal., March 15.—The United States custom office and post office at Tecate were burned last night and the postmaster, Frank V. Johnson was shot dead by three bandits, according to advices received here tonight.

Warren Widenbach was wounded. Observers of the tragedy say that the bandits were Mexicans.

A charred American flag was found in the ruins of Johnson's store, which also was the custom office and post-office. A posse started at daybreak in pursuit of the bandits.

Johnson it was learned was shot through the heart when he refused to give the combination of the safe. Elliott D. Johnson, the deceased brother of the state telling him of the secretary of state Bryan, Governor Hiram W. Johnson, at Sacramento, and Representative Kettner at Washington, demanding a thorough investigation. He placed the responsibility for the tragedy on Mexicans.

After feeling along the border was intensified by the tragedy today when a newspaper photographer on the American side was fired at by Mexicans. He was not injured.

TALKS ON THRIFT.

No. 10—Safe Investment of Savings.

"Thrift is the one investment that always yields returns,"—Isaac P. Marcorson.

Many persons want to make money too fast and often lose what they save by risking it on questionable ventures. The savings bank way is the best until one has accumulated some capital and acquired experience and judgment to enable him to make sound investments on a larger scale. A savings account does not compel the investor to go luck and start over again because of losses by speculation or otherwise.

One can invest small, odd amounts in a savings account. He can invest them at any time, and his money will begin to earn interest at once. The interest, as soon as it is added to the principal, begins to earn more interest itself and thus the account grows in two ways.

Of course, savings bank compound interest is not the only way to make money with money.

Many fortunes were made and many more will be made through wise investments. And many fortunes are lost, too, through unwise investments. But thrifty habits and consulting with experienced persons like conservative bankers will give one the wisdom necessary to handle money wisely.

When you invest in some things—stocks, for instance—you assume a business risk for the sake of sharing in business profits. But perhaps you are not in a position to take "business risks."

Speculation is an expensive luxury. The wisest course for the person of moderate resources is to keep entirely clear of it, no matter what form it takes. When you speculate, you can only hope to win, but with your money in a sound bank you can know just where your money is and what it is earning for you all the time.

Savings bank deposits are better protected than money in any equally profitable and equally available direct investment. The protection is as nearly perfect as law can make any investment of money. That is why the savings bank ought to be considered one of the foundations of our national safety and prosperity.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., March 16.—There are probably more lantern slides in the town of Durham than in any other town of the state. The stereopticon or the reflectoscope has become to be the scientific teacher's first assistant and the enormous number of slides here is growing rapidly.

Professor Hewitt of the electrical engineering department now has more than 1500 and his collection is constantly being enlarged. A student may

CURRENT OPINION

Solution of Park Problem Up to Boys; They Should Feel Responsible for Their Preservation.

Boys can help me more than any one else in the solution of the city's park problem. The playgrounds we now have are only a drop in the bucket compared to those we need. There are large numbers of vacant lots throughout the city that could and should be utilized for playground purposes, as well as the lots purchased by the city for future erection of school buildings. We ought to be able to compel by law also the establishment of roof playgrounds on every large building hereafter to be put up.

But aside from the playgrounds the parks themselves need our consideration. I want the boys especially to use them with the knowledge that they are not merely for their use this year, but that they are their parks and those of the boys and girls and men and women of the city for many years to come. I want them to feel responsible for their preservation as green spots and to protect them as their own property against vandalism.

I wish I could start a campaign in this city for window boxes in every house, a get together campaign for the bringing of the green country and bright flowers into every home of the city. I want help also for the preservation of trees throughout the city and the replanting of them in every place where a dead tree is removed. In the last two years the city lost five thousand trees through failure to do this, although there is a statutory provision, I have found, empowering the park commissioner to plant trees wherever dead ones are taken from any piece of property.—Cabot Ward, Park Commissioner of New York City.

have an illustrated text book and a teacher may draw diagrams on a board, but with slides the teacher's drawings are made in a class room instantaneously, and the student gets the benefit of all the illustrations to be found in dozens of books, magazines, and out-of-print and other rare publications.

Professor Hewitt's collection is particularly rich in hydro-electric projects, views of water power sites and many series of pictures showing the construction work on power developing plants.

Professor E. R. Groves of the departments of sociology and psychology has a large collection to which he is constantly adding, and all the members of the agricultural faculty make constant use of slides in teaching.

The slide collection, says Professor Hewitt, enables one to gather up all the illustrations available on a subject in a moment and to be ready instantly for an illustrated lecture. Where the subjects are certain to have but temporary interest I use the rectoscope, but where there is permanent value I always make a slide. Professor Hewitt makes all his slides himself in his own laboratories and they are eloquent of his photographic skill.

THE PARSON'S BRIDE

When the unmarried pastor of a rural congregation brings home a wife, the event, even today, is of immediate interest to the entire community. In old time New England when the minister was accepted almost as a matter of course as the leading man of the village, it was even more so. An interesting account is preserved how in 1798, the Rev. Leonard Woods brought home his New Hampshire bride, the beautiful Miss Wheeler.

Under the direction of a committee of ladies the paragon was prepared and furnished. Then it was arranged that the officers of the church, the more prominent members and the intimate friends of the minister and their wives should meet the couple at the town boundary and escort them to the new home, where they should be entertained.

This program caused an excessive flutter among the womanfolk, who had acquired locally a somewhat enviable reputation as cooks, and no little rivalry arose as to who should prepare, and to whom should be entrusted the crowning delicacies of the feast. Dress was also an important question. Miss Wheeler had been distinguished for elegance as well as for bonny, and the good ladies were eager to show her that they understood what was fashionable and becoming. Seldom had the village seamstress been so busy.

On the appointed day thirty chaises or more met at the rendezvous, at the last house in the parish and as the clergyman and his bride drove up, after a warm welcome, the cavalcade formed in line with the three deacons and their wives in front, and dashed over the road in gay procession to the new parsonage where an animated throng awaited them. After the ceremony of introduction to the young man, the crowd repaired to the tables which were loaded with every luxury. After supper singing was proposed.

Next Sunday Mrs. Woods walked out attired in green silk dress, a white satin cardinal trimmed with white fur, a white satin bonnet and a gray fox muff and tippet.

The handsome bride won and held the attention of the parish; but nevertheless there was a sequel to this bridal display not wholly pleasing. For Parson Woods was notably close. He had caused criticism by selling superfluous Thanksgiving turkeys, chickens and other gifts bestowed upon himself, and had bestowed upon his horse—a gift, so that when the white satin clerk became defaced and a subscription paper was started with the object of replacing it there was some demur.

Nevertheless enough money and to spare was raised; and the minister's lady appeared for long afterwards on every Sunday attired in a soberer and more durable elegance of a black satin cloak, trimmed with rich lace—Youth's Companion.

THE REAL FRA DIAVOLO

DESERTED BY MEN, BETRAYED BY HIS PHYSICIAN.

Memoirs of Gen. Hugo Tell Story of Campaign Against the Brigand Who Fought for Bourbons Against Napoleon.

General Hugo's memoirs tell the story of his campaign against Fra Diavolo, alias Michael Pozza, the Italian brigand who fought for the Bourbons against Napoleon. The general transforms his adversary into a kind of hero and puts his personal prowess in such a dramatic light that his son, the poet Victor Hugo, found it necessary to add little or nothing to the account to raise it to the level of an epic.

However, M. Jacques Rambaud publishes in the Revue de Paris some new documents which reduce this campaign to more prosaic proportions. These documents are the very letters written by Commandant Hugo, the future general, to Caesar Berthier, his commander-in-chief, as well as the formal report of his operations drawn up at Naples on November 4, 1808.

In his memoirs Hugo from the outset affects a wonderful confidence; his letters prove that he was mightily perplexed how to deal with an enemy with whom the whole population was in sympathy, and he frankly confesses that in the work of conquest he looks rather to bribery and treachery than to force of arms.

His memoirs describe a real battle, the fight at Bojano, in which his soldiers are represented as making 30 prisoners after killing or drowning hundreds of brigands. His letters are more modest and speak only of a skirmish in which "several" brigands were killed and only six were taken prisoner. There is, too, in those letters nothing about the shot in his right leg which he afterward mentions in his memoirs; on the contrary, he seems to have moved about with remarkable agility.

This does not mean that the campaign against the famous brigand was not decidedly strenuous, but the military operations would have been singularly fruitless and Fra Diavolo would have continued to range the country for many years had he not been deserted by his men and in his solitary condition recognized by a village doctor, who won his confidence and betrayed him.

Hugo assures us in his memoirs that he interceded with King Joseph to grant Fra Diavolo a pardon. There is no evidence of this and it is not very likely. How could he have had the face to claim that this captured brigand should be treated as a prisoner of war when from his own showing he was a man more celebrated for crimes than for deeds of military daring, more accustomed to take a flight than to stand his ground and fight? He compared him, indeed, with Mandrin and Cartouche. That means that the hangman's rope was too good for him.

The Ready Cody.

The late Col. Samuel F. Cody, England's once successful aviator, was an American; and Cody in his youth led an eventful life as showman, sharpshooter, circus tumbler and what-not.

Cody once exhibited, as a side-show feature of a circus, a Tartary wild horse. "Here you are, gentle," he shouted from his side-show platform. "Here you are—the only genuine wild horse of Tartary. A purse of $10 is offered to anybody who can stick on his back."

There were no aspirants for the purse, and Cody continued:

"If any gentleman here can stick on his back thirty seconds I'll give him the ten-dollar purse and the wild horse besides, by Jingo. The animal's unridable. I've had years of equestrian practice, and he shakes me off in ten seconds."

"Ever try gettin' inside 'im?" shouted a yokel.

"Yes, I've tried that, friend," Cody replied, "but his mouth ain't quite as big as yours."

"The Cut-Flower Express."

American railway trains often bear amusing or picturesque names, but no American "special" or "limited" bears such a poetic name as that of a train that runs every day in the year between Toulon and Paris. This train is called the "rapide des fleurs"—which we may translate "the cut-flower express."

The train carries nothing but cut flowers, which are shipped in baskets and pasteboard boxes for the Paris market. You can buy the violets of Hyeres, the roses and carnations of Antibes and the Roman hyacinths of Olives and Carquegnon at the flower stalls of Paris eighteen hours after they were gathered on the shores of the Mediterranean.

A considerable quantity of these flowers go also to Germany and Belgium, and some are sent as far as Vienna and St. Petersburg. A special train crew handles the packages and sorts them as mail clerks sort the mails. The "cut-flower express" runs at high speed and is nearly always on time.—Youth's Companion.

Then Harper fainted.

THE FIRST DOLLAR DAY WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Merchants Report Big Business in All Lines--A Permanent Fixture.

The first Dollar Day was a great success. If you have any doubt about this statement, ask the local merchants, how their business was on Saturday.

The Dollar bargain day brought in hundreds of shoppers and the local people were out in force, so that in all of the places of business there was a continuous rush. The trade was not confined to the dollar bargains, although the merchants made up some attractive offerings in this direction, but included all kinds of trade.

One merchant said Saturday night it was one of his biggest days, and in fact never had been exceeded except at Christmas.

Many others reported the same thing, in fact, a tour of the stores found them to be busy to talk. One said his out-of-town trade had been the best with the exception of the Christmas holidays, and he attributed this to the Dollar Day entirely.

All agreed that the scheme had come to stay and that next year with a little more time to work it up, it would be a great success.

The Dollar Day scheme has been tried in several places in New England during the past week, and in all cases it has been reported a great boon to the March business.

THAW APPEALS TO PEOPLE OF NEW YORK

Concord, N. H., March 15.—Barth K. Thaw has addressed to the people of the state of New York, in whose name is being conducted the contest to return the slayer of Stanford White to the New York assembly man appeal to end the case.

The statement was Saturday telegraphed by Thaw to newspapers and press associations calling attention to resolutions which have been introduced in the New York Assembly by John L. Golden, demanding that the prosecution be terminated.

Reviewing his two trials, Thaw sets forth that of the 26 men confined with him in the Tombs in 1906, charged with homicide, 23 are free today, and other men have escaped from Matamoras without being pursued. The statement concludes as follows:

"I do not ask for sympathy, but only justice, which should be the inherent right of every man. For the deed committed I ask no benevolence. It was done in a moment when sorrow, wrecked my home, and when I was forced to realize that the happiness of a lifetime, which after marriage should have been mine, was taken from me. The deed was committed; my family, three near and dear to me, publicly exposed to the mockery of my mother plunged in grief and myself into a living death, the tortures of which I do not wish to relate.

"I am now a man, my youth passed, my resources impaired. My parents' wealth have been expended. My only help have assisted many in need. This failure holds for me an opportunity to bring some peace and happiness to my aged mother, who in these eight years has known pain and who has seen her declining years in untold sorrow.

"My adversary now seeks to place me in Matamoras—a living Hell—to spend the rest of my life in never again take my place in my mother's home in her remaining years, and in respectful consideration I now appeal to the citizens of New York in the power of their sovereignty to stop the prosecution, and therefore assure that all people who believe that I have suffered years of punishment commensurate with my deed write the representatives of their own district at Albany before Wednesday to demand and vote for these resolutions."

FOR SAFETY OF CHILDREN

Automobile Club of Maryland Adopts Set of Rules, Which are Approved by Baltimore Board of Education and Distributed Among Pupils.

Motor car clubs in all the large cities, and also in the smaller municipalities, might intimate with profit to their members and the community at large the example set by the Automobile Club of Maryland. This organization has formulated a set of rules for the safety of children and has had them printed. They were submitted to the Board of Education of Baltimore, which approved them, and 100,000 copies have been distributed among the school children. The board of education has issued orders for teachers to instruct the children at least bi-monthly in the observance of the rules. In addition to some words of advice, they have been distributed among the children, large placards bearing the rules being in every school room in the city. The rules are as follows:

BALTIMORE PUBLIC SCHOOLS SAFETY RULES FOR CHILDREN

1. Keep This Card and Study It.
2. What should you do before crossing a street? I should stop and look both ways, first to the left and then to the right. If the street is clear for at least half a block then I can go ahead and cross the street quickly.

3. Where is the proper place for you or anyone to cross the street? At a crossing, and I should never cross a street at any other point, for the reason that there is less danger at crossings than at any other point.

4. When you are playing in the street what should you always keep in mind? That I have chosen the most dangerous place possible in which to play, and that automobiles and other vehicles approach swiftly and silently and are almost sure to kill me if they strike me.

5. Why should you not play in a street frequently used by automobiles or other vehicles? Because I am apt to hinder the drivers, thus making them lose control of their vehicles, which would be dangerous not only to me, but also to others.

6. What would you do if you were standing in the middle of the street and should see automobiles or other vehicles coming both ways? If I am caught in the middle of the street with vehicles approaching from both directions, I should stand perfectly still and let the vehicles pass around me because they are not likely to run over me if I do not move.

7. What danger is there in stealing a ride on an automobile or other vehicle? I am in danger of falling off and being injured, or I may be run over by another vehicle when I jump off. This is a very dangerous practice and I should avoid it.

8. In case a child or anyone is injured by an automobile what is the first thing to do? I should secure assistance and get the injured one to the nearest hospital as quickly as possible.

9. Should you ever throw a stone at an automobile or other vehicle and why? I should never throw a stone or other missile at any vehicle, because I might hurt someone, or damage the vehicle, or cause the driver to lose control, which might result in an accident, and for the reason that it is against the law. No good boy or girl would be guilty of such conduct.

10. Should you look after younger children in crossing streets, and why? I should assist younger children in crossing the street because they cannot think as quickly as I can and may not realize the danger which threatens them.

11. What should you not do if you see an automobile or other vehicle unattended standing on the street? I should not touch it or move any of the levers, or blow the horn, or even go near it, I might release a brake or start the engine or do something else that would do damage and place others in danger, and for the reason that it is against the law.

12. Why should you select side streets not frequented by automobiles and other vehicles on which to play? Because it is much safer than playing on a street where many automobiles and other vehicles are passing.

13. When playing on a street and you see an automobile or other vehicle approaching, what should you do? I should step to the side of the street or to the pavement until the vehicle has passed.

14. Should you stand on the sidewalk close to the street when vehicles are passing close to the curb, or should you ever stand close to any vehicle when it is passing you? No, because it is very dangerous. I should get as far away as possible from any passing vehicle.

15. Should you ever use roller skates, coasters or other similar contrivances on the streets? Never, because they are always dangerous, particularly on the streets frequented by automobiles and other vehicles for the reason that I cannot perfectly control my movements and therefore am continually liable to be severely injured or killed.

MEAT PRICES KEPT DOWN

A saving of $2,300,000 to the citizens of Nuremberg resulted from that German municipality's sale of meat at cost prices during 1913. Statistics recently made public show that the fifteen retail shops maintained by the city sold only 4.3 per cent of the meat locally consumed 4.3 per cent at about 15,400 of Nuremberg's 358,500 population, or in round figures, 4000 families, enjoyed the benefits of the city's sales of meat at cost prices. The city statistical office, taking the lowest prices prevailing at the regular meat markets, finds that on an average the city sold beef at least 1 cent, pork 3 cents, and veal 2-2.5 cents per pound cheaper than the regular butchers, the average for all meats being about 3-1.2 cents per pound cheaper. As the consumption of meat in Nuremberg was 130 pounds per capita, this means a direct saving through the city meat markets of something more than $2,000,000.

The facts are that the saving to the people of Nuremberg was many times greater than that sum, and that not only the small fraction of the people who patronized municipal meat markets got the entire population derived material benefit from the city's action. The differences in price between the regular meat markets and the city markets were at least double the minimum figures which the statistical office has used, but the material benefit was the keeping down of prices in the regular shops to the level of normal profits. The statistical office does not commit itself on this feature of the city's activities; but taking into account the sudden drop in the prices of meats of all kinds when the municipal markets were opened in the fall of 1912, it is naming a minimum figure to say that all meat sold in Nuremberg in 1913 was sold for 5 cents per pound less than if the municipal markets had not existed. Thus, instead of only 4000 families saving about $70,000 by reason of the competition of the municipal markets, the 90,000 families of Nuremberg's actually saved about $2,300,000 on their meat bills during the year, because

GEN. VILLA WILL MARCH ON TORREON TODAY

Chihuahua, Mexico, March 15.—General Villa announced positively Saturday that he would begin his advance on Torreon Monday morning.

He explained the delay by saying that he had been anxious to have a personal representative of General Carranza with him at the front. This afternoon he received a dispatch from Juarez stating that General Felipe Angeles, Constitutional, Sub-Secretary of War, had arrived there and would leave for this city on board a special train tonight. A representative of General Villa Thursday advised that General Angeles had sent direct to Chihuahua. At first General Carranza refused, but later reconsidered.

General Villa's selection of General Angeles to accompany him has great significance in view of the reports of a long time was chief of artillery at Torreon. He not only knows every inch of the country, but the artillerymen of General Velasco were trained by him. General Villa has believed for a long time that once he opens the attack there will be wholesale desertions to him. Spies report that the federalists have placed their best artillery on Pita Hill, just west of Gomez Palacio, which is six miles north of Torreon. General Villa will have to take this hill if he is to proceed beyond Gomez Palacio. He firmly believes that when the federal artillerymen learn that General Angeles is with him they will desert to the constitutionalists and he will be able to turn the batteries of Pita Hill on Torreon. Although confident of victory, General Villa is visibly disturbed by reports which his spies have brought in. The best generals in the federal service are in Torreon, and General Villa is not underestimating them.

"Villa will be the next president of Mexico. That is his ambition, and despite all reports to the contrary it remains his ambition until he either is dead or President."

This declaration was made today by a friend close to General Villa. It was prompted by reports that the coming to Chihuahua of General Carranza recognized as the civil head of the revolution, was to bring about conditions more satisfactory to foreign governments and to place in the seat of authority better advisers than General Villa appears to have in handling complications growing out of the killing of William S. Benton, a British subject.

TO TENDER SENATOR HOLLIS A BANQUET

A meeting of the Portsmouth Navy Yard Improvement Association was held at the U. V. U. hall on Saturday evening, with an attendance of about 300 of the members. WHEN POLITENESS PAID.

Value of Courtesy as Demonstrated Waiter.

The proprietor of a successful downtown daylight eating place was doing the talking. One of his admiring customers had said something to him about his invariable politeness to all comers.

"Well," he said, half-apologetically, "I guess I am polite, but it is not my fault. You see, it is easier for me to be that way than any other. I'm a scrapper, and the way to avoid scraps is not to brush the fur wrong way."

"Sometimes I think I am too polite and I ought to bang somebody in the face instead of passing out the pleasant smile, but what the good of that? I'd not only lose a customer, but I might get licked besides. I've been polite not because I felt that I owed it to other people, but because I owed it to myself."

"Most of them don't think about it, don't appreciate it, but of them, I suppose, but I know I feel better when I remember that I smoothed somebody out instead of ruffling him up. Then politeness pays, though I was polite before I ever thought of the pay part of it. Listen:

"Ten years ago I was a waiter in a swaggar place uptown, one of the finest, but not a lobster palace. Tips were plenty, for the trade was fashionable, and the waiters soon got the habit of looking for customers who were sure to make down well. If a customer didn't remember the waiter, the waiter soon forgot him. I'll admit I wasn't much different from the others, but I wasn't rude about it, and tried to be as polite to the party who tipped me a dime as one who tipped me a dollar. I averaged it up, you see, and called it fifty-five cents for each one.

"Well, there was an old fellow who came in one day who looked like he had got into the wrong place. Nobody wanted him, but somebody got him, and he wasn't easy to wait on. His bill was a dollar, and he tipped 10 per cent. I used to think that was fair enough, but the other waiters thought it was bad form for anybody to tip less than a quarter and the old chap, who began to come in every day, was handled like a babe of rage.

"I kept clear of him, for a week, and then I got him because nobody else would have him. By that time I was feeling kind of sorry for him, that's the way I always do, and I treated him like I would a 1415-burger. He seemed to appreciate it, but he tipped me only his usual 10 per cent. Some of the waiters gave me the laugh when they saw the top for the politeness I handed out with his meal, and the next time when he came and called for me they simply howled at me.

"Well, I got that old fellow every day for a month, but he was always polite, and I thought I would give him as good as he sent, which I did. Every time he came in I got a send off from the other waiters, but I didn't care. I was getting used to it."

Palacio, which is six miles north of Torreon. General Villa will have to take this hill if he is to proceed beyond Gomez Palacio. He firmly believes that when the federal artillerymen learn that General Angeles is with him they will desert to the constitutionalists and he will be able to turn the batteries of Pita Hill on Torreon. Although confident of victory, General Villa is visibly disturbed by reports which his spies have brought in. The best generals in the federal service are in Torreon, and General Villa is not underestimating them.

"Villa will be the next president of Mexico. That is his ambition, and despite all reports to the contrary it remains his ambition until he either is dead or President."

This declaration was made today by a friend close to General Villa. It was prompted by reports that the coming to Chihuahua of General Carranza recognized as the civil head of the revolution, was to bring about conditions more satisfactory to foreign governments and to place in the seat of authority better advisers than General Villa appears to have in handling complications growing out of the killing of William S. Benton, a British subject.

SHOT A MAN AND WORRIED INTO ILL HEALTH

Dover, Me. March 15.—The Grand Jury of Piscataqua County, in session here since Tuesday, completed its duty today and reported to Justice Hanson in the Supreme Court.

Sixteen indictments were returned among which the following were made public:

Cornelius C. Cable, manslaughter.
Morris Crockett, manslaughter.

The Bangor attorney for Cable asked Justice Hanson for a continuance of the case, inasmuch as the respondent is a physical and mental wreck at his home in Brooklyn. He produced affidavits from New York physicians testifying to this. The case was ordered continued and the bail renewed.

Cable while hunting at Schoodic last October shot and killed Charles W. Dodge of Guilford, who was in the woods seeking relief from tuberculosis. Remorse over his act, according to the attorney, is responsible for Cable's present condition.

Morris Crockett of Abbott, while hunting in Manson in October was alleged to have shot and killed Herbert B. Foster of Guilford, mistaking him for a deer. He is out under bail.

MEN THINK FIRST—WHEN IN LOVE THEY'RE SELDOM FOOLS

Have Real Serious Thoughts Before Asking "The" Girl.—That's Why Cupid Usually Shoots Straight

I have a friend, who being in love, wondered whether he should put the question to a certain young lady. There is nothing more common than the idea that love makes a man an idiot. With the generosity of men, I have found that it makes them remarkably serious.

"Here am I," says the young gentleman, "thinking of proposing to a young lady. We shall have to live together for the rest of our lives. I wonder how we shall get on."

The person who thinks the average man treats that question lightly is mistaken. A man may be a careless creature, but he is not such a fool as to ask that. My friend was not he was very much in love with the lady, but he felt for that reason that he could be felt for that very reason, as a great many men do that was why he should proceed most cautiously. Was he thinking of asking her to be his wife simply because she had positively the sweetest eyes, the most bewitching nose and, altogether the most delightful ways he had ever met with packed into one girl? He took a piece of paper and wrote down these questions concerning her:

Will she love me?
Will she be an intellectual companion?
Will she be economical—a good housekeeper?

If we have children will she be a good mother?

If a young lady were informed by a gentleman who admired her that he was drawing these questions concerning her and worrying himself horribly concerning them I dare say she would be shocked. Perhaps she would reject him. They are questions however that are at the back of the heads of a vast number of lovers nowadays, and they have been at the back of the head of lovers since the world was created.

And doesn't the young lady ask herself questions respecting the young gentleman? Not perhaps when she accepts him (for she can always get out of marrying him afterward) but before she says the irrevocable "I will." A young lady today accepts a man "on trial," as it were. If he does not come up to anticipations he soon drops out of the picture and she goes on to the next.

Mrs. John Strange Winter knew a young gentleman who received such a letter as that, and who set off to expostulate with the lady.

"If you didn't think anything of me" he complained bitterly "why did you accept me?"

"I'm sorry—so sorry," replied the young lady weeping. "But perhaps you know it was just because I hadn't thought anything of you that I did accept you. But I've thought a lot of you since."

That's just it men don't realize how extremely trying it must be for a young lady to have to make up her mind all of a sudden when such an unexpected question is asked of her. And some lovers are remarkably clever in hiding their intentions.

The man, if he is a sensible creature, dates the questioning with himself before he proposes. My friend who put those four questions to himself told me about them the other evening while his wife-for he married her—was up stairs putting the child to bed.

"But I never dream," he said "that she'd turn out such a thorough brute! The best wife, etc. etc."

It's been lucky. But there are some who answer yes when the answer should be no, and some answer no, when they ought to have answered yes. The man who marries the woman he ought not to, generally marries the one he ought.

It is no small thing choosing a partner for life. Some people give you a list of Don'ts. Don't marry a girl or man who does this or that. I know a man who when the news got abroad of his engagement to a lady no one knew anything about received a lot of "hats" respecting the young lady. "I hope she is not this and that" and "I hope she is not that."

"I hope she is not extravagant," one lady sighed. "So many girls are nowadays."

He hoped she was not either. "I hope she is very pretty," said another.

He had not the slightest doubt about it.

"I do hope she is a good-natured girl," said another.

"I tell you what it is," he explained to me. "Do the people imagine I would marry a girl I considered hideous, idiotic, extravagant, ill-natured? Do you think I'm blind, deaf, dumb, idiotic, a raving lunatic? I never dream! People could imagine me such an ass before."

And he was not. He never did a wiser thing in his life, than to have that girl in the extent of sticking his whole future happiness on asking her to be his wife.

The young man who proposes to a lady ordinarily has to take a great deal on trust. Men cannot, most of them marry girls they have known all their lives. The young gentleman leaves home and goes into the world to seek his living and it is ten to one that he falls in love with some fair creature whose very name he does not know till he finds it out after a fearful lot of pains. He who finds out what she is really like, without any one suspecting he is in love with her, and seeking to discover whether she is worthy of his love or suited to him is a difficult task. It is really a solemn and serious thing a task in which you would imagine people would be willing to assist him to come to a right conclusion. Not at all. If there is a job in which people are least inclined to help one, it is in helping the young man to discover a young lady who is suited to be his wife. The parents of the young lady are usually his worst foes. He wants to know desperately what kind of a girl she is at home.

The reason of young men arriving at such right conclusions in regard to the girls they pick out for their wives with such poor opportunities of judging them is this. If you ask a young gentleman what he sees in Miss X, that he should dream of proposing to her, he won't tell you she is the most beautiful girl in the world, but that she is absolutely the best, dearest, most sympathetic, etc. creature he has ever discovered.

"I knew it the very first time I met her on the top of an omnibus," a friend informed me some time since. "I told you didn't I that we first met on the top of an omnibus—A beastly wet day. Took me a month to get up introduction to her."

He had met the young lady and had come to the conclusion that she was the one girl most completely packed with all the goodness he most admired. Investigation assured him that he was not wrong.

A man falls in love with a girl for her worth. And the more worth the man has in him the quicker he is to recognize the worth of the girl.

"It is the good qualities you yourself possess that make you keen to discover them in others," declared Edward, "and it is the faults that one possesses that makes one blind to the faults of others."

Just so. The best way to picking out the best wife in the world is to be worthy of her. There are of course cases when the men make mistakes and get a wife less worthy than he deserves. But in the majority of cases he gets just the wife one might expect from his sense and virtues when he proposed to her. And he'll learn more as to how to make a right choice through making himself sensible and honest young fellow than he will by swallowing all the warnings and hopes and hints and fears about her that have ever been spoken or written since the world began.—Madge Arthur in Baltimore American.

REDUCE NON-RESIDENT TAX
Change in Maine Game Laws Generally Favored—Tax on Resident Hunters and Close Time on Moose Also Proposed.

Bangor, March 15.—It is more than likely that the game laws of Maine will be amended in important respects at the session of the legislature next winter, and there is a growing sentiment in favor of the reduction of the license fee imposed upon non-resident hunters of deer and moose, which originally was $15 and was two years ago increased to $25. While the season of 1913 was successful so far as the number of visiting sportsmen and the amount of the license revenues were concerned. It is believed that some are kept away from Maine because of the advanced in the fee, and there is a general feeling that the resident hunter should bear some part of the expense of maintaining the supply of game.

The sentiment in favor of reduction in the non-resident tax and imposition of at least a nominal tax on resident hunters is shared by a very considerable proportion of the membership of the Maine Sportsmen's Fish and Game Association, as disclosed by a poll recently completed. Most of those replying to a series of questions on the general subject of game-law revision favor a reduction of the non-resident tax, especially if, as now seems altogether likely, the next Legislature orders a close time of four or five years on moose, to preserve that game from extermination or, at least, to allow the young bucks time to attain more growth and good horns.

Ninety per cent of the sportsmen replying to the queries favor a close time on moose of four or five years' duration, while others favor a longer period. In the matter of non-resident tax the great majority favor a flat reduction, while others suggest a graded tax—$5 for birds, $15 for birds and deer and $25 for birds, deer and moose. There is general agreement that a tax of $1 and costs of issue should be imposed on resident sportsmen. General opposition is expressed to the proposal to limit the legal allowance of deer to one buck. The views of sportsmen as thus ascertained will be collated and used for next winter for the purpose of influencing legislation.

TO CLOTHE THE POOR CHILDREN
Exeter, N. H., March 15.—Under the will of Oliver Hunt, who died at Danville in 1895, the Free Will Baptist Church of that town and the Congregational churches of Kingston, Hampstead and Raymond will soon equally share about $10,000, the income to be used solely for clothing poor children between 6 and 12 years old attending the Sunday schools of these churches.

The account filed in the Registry of Probate by Lester A. Colby of Danville, trustee under the will, shows a balance of $9612.39. Edward W. Hunt son of Oliver, who was a life beneficiary, has just died and the unique bequest to the churches now take effect.

PAGE'S ADDRESS IS STILL BEING DISCUSSED

London, March 15.—If the charge against Ambassador Page is that he has caused any misunderstanding here as to the object of the United States in building the Panama Canal or her interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, one looks in vain for anything to support it.

The press here, especially the Tory section, would have eagerly seized upon any advantage that could be extracted from his remarks in a sense, inimical to the Monroe Doctrine, but not one has attempted it so far.

The only comments are by a couple of evening papers, which treated the whole incident with levity and without making any capital out of it. The opinion is expressed in important financial quarters in the city that Ambassador Page rendered service in making it clear that the United States has no objection to British investments in general in the American states where such investments are not inspired by political schemes.

This passage was taken at the banquet, whether Page meant it or not, as a shrewd hit at Cowdrey's Mexican activities and was applauded. His phrase describing Central American States as having "volcanic tendencies" excited a laugh, but his further remarks on the Monroe Doctrine were treated with serious attention in accordance with the spirit in which they were uttered.

RENEW ATTACK ON PAGE
Washington, March 15.—Page means ought to be found by the powers that be to send the lips of the ambassador to Great Britain or else to justify to the American people, he ought to be recalled and that as promptly as possible," declared Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, in a formal statement today, after reading cabled accounts of Ambassador Page's address before the Associated Chambers in London, Wednesday night.

Senator Chamberlain introduced the resolution passed by the Senate as a result of which Sen. Bryan ended Mr. Page for a full report of his speech, in which he was reported as having said that the American people were pleased that Great Britain should profit most by the Panama Canal and that the Monroe Doctrine meant merely that the United States "would prefer that no European Government would gain more land in the New World."

"This is the second time in less than a year that Ambassador Page has been guilty of the impropriety of placing the American people in a false light before the British public," said Senator Chamberlain.

"Further reports of the Ambassador's London speech do not differ at all from the first report as to the matters concerning which I complained. It reflects the American view only in one particular, and that is that we rejoice in the prosperity of the British Empire, as it might be said that we rejoice in the prosperity of the country on the globe."

"But it does not reflect the idea of the American people, in so far as he undertakes to announce a new Monroe Doctrine and in so far as he undertakes to discuss the construction of the Panama Canal for the greater benefit of Great Britain than that which, it was hoped, under an American policy, would have been derived by the United States in its construction, control and operation."

"I think it might be said with absolute truth that if the Congressmen of the United States had any idea that the United States would not have the right to control the Canal in such way as they saw fit and to grant it they pleased free passage to American coastwise vessels, not a dollar ever would have been appropriated either for the purchase of the Canal Zone for the construction of the Canal or for its fortification."

WILL NOT EFFECT GOVERNMENT SHIPS
Washington, March 15.—Statements that government vessels would be compelled to pay tolls if the Sims bill repealing the exemption clause of the Panama canal were enacted were characterized Saturday as "monstrous perversion of the truth, and the most foolish folly enunciated since fools were discovered," by Representative Adamson, chairman of the House Interstate commerce committee. "Such vessels are not mentioned in the canal act nor in the Sims bill, and ought not to be," the statement continues. "They are owned by the same owner who owns the canal and passes his vessels by right of ownership according to treaty. Owning both warehouses and canal, it could pay tolls to nobody but itself, which would be concentrated nonsense."

Three minority reports on the toll repeal plan were presented from the committee today. Representative Doremus of Michigan and O'Shaughnessy of Rhode Island, Democrats, declared they could see no reason to reverse their position in favor of a coastwise shipping exemption, while Representative Knowland of California and Representative Lafferty of Oregon presented separate reports, attacking the repeal plan.

DOLLAR DAY WAS A SUCCESS

Some of Our Merchants Would Like to See it Repeated Again in the Near Future

Dollar Day in Portsmouth was a success and those merchants who were alive to the situation and advertised their wares are well pleased with the outcome. The following is what some of our merchants have to say as the result of the plan inaugurated by The Herald to benefit the local merchants:

Henry P. Payne, grocer, reports his day's sales as exceeding that of the previous Saturday by nearly $200. "Dollar day was certainly beneficial to my trade and we had a splendid trade especially in the articles we advertised for the day's sale. Dollar day when held again should be more extensively advertised, now that it has been tried."

Fred A. Gray & Co., dealers in wall papers, reports a splendid trade in wall papers, which far exceeded their most sanguine expectations.

Lewis E. Staples, dry goods dealer, reports that he was obliged to put on extra help in order to take care of the throng that visited his store on Saturday afternoon and evening.

Amos O. Benfield, grocer, reports a very satisfactory day and cash receipts considerably in excess of the previous Saturday. There was a good demand for the dollar combination offers made by Mr. Benfield.

Harry Wendell of the firm of A. P. Wendell & Co., hardware dealers, reports an exceptionally good day for trade and believes that "Dollar Day" should be held again.

C. E. Tilton of the Tilton Drug Store when asked concerning his business on Saturday, said it was the best for a long time throughout the day, and another similarly advertised day was wanted to bring the people here to do their shopping.

Andrew Goveals, proprietor of the Nichols' candy store, reports an excellent business and a good demand for the special advertised articles.

erhood of St. Andrew, will visit, Christ church chapter tonight when a special Lenten service will be held at 7:30 o'clock.

OBITUARY

Timothy Clifford.

Timothy Clifford, one of the oldest Irish residents of this city, died on Sunday after a lingering illness, aged 80 years. For many years he was employed in the several departments of the Frank Joffe Brewing Company, and was known as one of the old school of workmen who always labored for the best interest of those who employed him. His long and faithful service with that company was rewarded with a pension on his retirement about ten years ago. He leaves no relatives. Funeral services will be held from the church of the Immaculate Conception on Wednesday morning.

SELLING THE TOGS OF THE PERIOD

WILL FILED AT WASHINGTON

Local People Remembered by the Late Mary B. White, Summer Resident of Little Boar's Head

The will of the late Mary B. White, a former summer resident of Little Boar's Head, was filed recently in Washington. It leaves her farm at Rye to her daughter, Elizabeth Clemons, to a son-in-law, Albert A. Clemons, $10,000; to Mrs. J. C. Thompson, of Philadelphia, a cousin, $1,000; to Mary Stevens, "a friend," $1,000; to Cornelius Haggerty, "for many years a member of the household," $1,000; all her real estate in New Hampshire to Mrs. Andrew P. Preston of Portsmouth, and Frank Mortimer Preston, her son; the rest to Joseph P. Bell, of Andover, Mass., Joseph T. Walker, of Concord, N. H., in trust to pay the income to the daughter, Elizabeth W. Clemons, for life. Upon her death the trust is to terminate and the property is to be distributed in equal parts between a brother, James D. Bell, of St. Petersburg, Fla., a sister, Elizabeth C. Bell, of Exeter, Lucy Bell of Exeter, and Charles C. Bell of Andover.

MRS. STEWART VINDICATED

Now Has Her Property Valued at 400,000 in Her Own Name

The termination of the litigation between Alice Gerry Stewart and her husband, David Stewart in the courts at Baltimore, resulted in a complete vindication of Mrs. Stewart's position and claims. The deed from Mrs. Stewart to her husband executed 25 years ago and recently put on record, giving her husband a one-half interest in all of her estate amounting to about $400,000 has been cancelled, so that she now has the estate in her own name. The divorce between them, which was decreed in Paris about a year ago, and which the husband has questioned will not be contested.

Mr. Stewart has released all his rights as husband in her property and estate and agreed not to contest the validity of this divorce, so that her property rights stand precisely as if the divorce had been granted in this country.

The Herald Hears

That the Gate Shoe Company howlers go after the Dover shoemakers on Thursday night in this city.

That a large crowd from the factory will witness the contest.

That the local shoemakers believe they can hand it out again to the Cochecho city boys.

That all roads lead to Music Hall tonight.

That the engineers' alarm has not been sounded since it was approved and adopted nearly a year ago.

That the Sunset League has started no training as yet.

That the Speed Club it is said, will adopt the knee watch as an aid to the slit skirt.

That the rest of the boys may get violet's scene day.

That the Boston and Maine will shortly make repairs at the Dover yard.

That the boys have not yet got through talking about the early morning banquet at the North End.

That some of them say that the next one will be no informal affair.

That the gang had a shortness of breath when they had to dig for that $1.25.

That a market report says butter is firm.

That some of it may be that way but not the walking kind.

That Dan Cypid is not providing much business for the municipal municipal bureau of late.

That the wedding bells today were the first City Clerk Drew has heard in many weeks.

That a South End resident has all the poultry men in the neighborhood frazzled.

That they are trying to find out how he got four geese from a hatching of duck eggs.

WILL VISIT LOCAL CHAPTER

Mr. George D. Randall of Boston, Asst. General Secretary of the Broth-

Today is a great day at the Scenic. It is the first day on which we show Dustin Farnum in "Soldiers of Fortune." This is a six reel feature with 255 distinct scenes. It is made with the assistance of the U. S. and Cuban armies. Mr. Farnum is by far the greatest actor today in Western roles, and he gives his acting that "punch" that puts the movie, if you miss this picture you'll regret it when your neighbor tells you how good it is.

With this comes a two part feature, "Divorce." This shows how the innocent must suffer with the guilty in this world. "Just a Song at Twilight" is only one reel, but it is one of the best we have ever offered and you'll wish it was longer. "The Idler" is another drama; and a funny Keystone "Mabel's Strange Predicament."

Miss Belle Barron, our charming soprano will have some new songs. Some show isn't it?

Tomorrow night is the night the young people have been looking forward to. Are you one of those that are making up parties to visit the Scenic?
